KATIE Price flashed her surgery-scarred boobs and got her nipple licked by a drag queen on a wild night out last night.

The mum-of-five let her hair down as she judged stripper competition Porn Idol at London's G-A-Y at Heaven nightclub.

Katie flashed her boobs to the crowd after partying backstage with pals.

She was at the famous gay club to judge a weekly strip night - but couldn't help but perform on stage with her own version of A Whole New World.

The former glamour model dressed casually in an over-sized neon jumper with matching trainers.

Making sure she made the most of her night out, Katie got friendly with the performers.

She posed provocatively as one of the stars licked her nipple for the cameras.

Katie then went to kiss the lookalike drag queen whose long blonde hair matched Katie's as they messed around together at the club.

While Katie sang Aladdin's A Whole New World, the cast of the hit new film were in London celebrating its premiere.

It's the same song Katie released as a duet with husband Peter Andre in 2006.

Before performing at the venue last night, Katie tweeted her ex-husband saying they "love each other really" and apologised for "hurting" him.

She went on to claim a mystery person stirred up trouble between the exes last year, around the time kids Princess and Junior moved in with their dad.

Putting the drama behind her, Katie headed to Heaven nightclub.

She looked keen to show off her breasts after The Sun Online revealed her family had begged her to delay her 11th boob job.

Katie is just back from Turkey after having a series of operations on her face and body last month.
