The blonde will quit tennis after the Australian Open in January to pursue outside interests.

The former world No 1 denies it is health related despite having rheumatoid arthritis.

She has dropped to 38th in the world rankings and last competed in October's China Open where she reached the semi-final.

She said: "I've always told myself, when the time comes, that there are things away from tennis that I want to do more, then it's time to be done."

She added: "In recent months, I've realised that there is a lot more in life that I'd like to accomplish off the court."

"This has nothing to do with my health and this isn't a goodbye."

"I look forward to sharing my exciting journey ahead with all of you!"

Wozniacki, who won her first Grand Slam title at this year's Australian Open, was previously engaged to golf star Rory McIlroy.

They split in 2014 after a three-year relationship when he realised he was not ready for marriage. She has since moved on with former NBA star David Lee who she wed this year.
