Kylie Jenner turned up the heat in a set of photos posted to her Instagram account.

Putting in work: TV star Kylie Jenner posted a trio of photos to her Instagram account on Thursday to promote her skincare line's sunscreen

The social media powerhouse's snaps were taken during a recent photo shoot for her skincare brand, Kylie Skin. The influencer's shots were also meant to promote her brand's sunscreen oil, currently available on its website.

Jenner was dressed in a pink lingerie top during the promotional shoot; her article of clothing stopped a few inches below her breasts and placed her toned tummy on full display.

Looking good! The social media powerhouse wore a pink lingerie top and a matching bottom during the photoshoot; her gorgeous brown hair fell to the ground

Dual purpose: In the post's caption, Jenner wrote that using the sunscreen made her 'feel sexy while staying protected'

A better look: Shortly before posting the promotional shots, the reality television star shared a short video to her Instagram Story

Opinions: During an interview with Glamour, Jenner expressed that 'nobody has perfect skin' and that she occasionally has flare-ups, especially when she is travelling
