Emily displayed her slim physique in the zebra-print bikini from all angles as she posed front-on before turning around.

The Gone Girl actress also filmed herself in the skimpy two-piece while lying on her bed.

The author gave birth to Sylvester Apollo Bear on March 8, her first child with movie producer Sebastian Bear-McClard.

In a sweet photo while breastfeeding her son, she told the world: "Sylvester Apollo Bear has joined us earth side."

Emily added: "Sly arrived 3/8/21 on the most surreal, beautiful, and love-filled morning of my life."

The We Are Your Friends actress shared the news of her pregnancy in October of 2020, as she graced the cover of Vogue magazine in celebration.

During her interview with the fashion publication, Emily explained that her child would grow up non-binary until they reach age 18.

She regaled: "When my husband and I tell friends that I'm pregnant, their first question after "Congratulations" is almost always "Do you know what you want?"

“We like to respond that we won’t know the gender until our child is 18 and that they’ll let us know then,” she added.

“Everyone laughs at this. There is a truth to our line, though, one that hints at possibilities that are much more complex than whatever genitalia our child might be born with.”

Emily shares her first-born with indie movie producer Sebastian whom she married in February of 2018.

She's been vocal about the changes her body went through during the pregnancy

Though she had known him for years, their wedding came as a shock, as she had just broken up with music composer Jeff Magid a month prior.

An insider later told Us Weekly, though, that “Emily has known Sebastian for years. They were all in a friend group. He wasn’t a stranger.”

The model was very vocal about her bodily changes during pregnancy, frequently sharing photos of her developing bump.

The celebrity even once admitted to feeling like “Winnie the Pooh.”

She explained: “Sometimes I feel like Winnie the Pooh in human form, other times like a fertility goddess with a juicy butt.”

“I took this on a day where I was feeling the latter. Either way, I know I’m going to miss this bump and those kicks very soon.”
