Geordie Shore stars Chloe Ferry and Bethan Kershaw are living it up in the sun in Portugal.

The pals jetted to the Algarve after the country confirmed it was open to British visitors and the UK added it to its 'Green List'.

Curvy Chloe, 25, sunbathed in a thong bikini as her reality TV co-star rubbed suntan lotion on her bum.

Bethan giggled as Chloe dutifully turned over onto her front, revealing her toned legs and shapely rear.

Stunning Bethan flaunted two-stone weight loss in thigh-skimming bikini bottoms and marble bikini top.

The Instagram influencer swept her hair into a high ponytail and wore large sunglasses to cover her eyes.

Chloe has managed to enjoy the sunshine throughout the coronavirus pandemic - she only left Dubai in January after a month-long stay.

The 25-year-old star was hit by a backlash for travelling to the holiday destination amid the ongoing coronavirus pandemic.

And she was caught flouting rules as she filmed herself on Instagram walking from Dubai Airport and the plane without wearing a mask.

Reality stars and influencers came under fire for jetting abroad despite Covid restrictions earlier this year, with many stars insisting that the sun-soaked holiday destinations were "essential work trips".

But many are now free to flock to Portugal and other countries on the UK's green list.

Since May 17, international travel has returned with a traffic light system in place, but which countries have made it onto the green list with no quarantine restrictions?

Countries who made it onto the green list have a low rate of infections and a steady number of vaccinations being distributed.

Holidaymakers can now jet off to those nations without the worry of quarantine restrictions, as foreign holidays have now restarted.

However, travel requires a pre-flight Covid test as well as a PCR test on day two of returning to the UK.
