Heidi Klum, 48, paraded her phenomenal physique in a lavender bikini on Thursday, during a jaunt on a luxury boat with husband Tom Kaulitzher, 31.

The couple took a dip in the Med, getting back aboard and drying off together in the baking hot sunshine as they sailed around the shores of Corsica.

And despite being surrounded by Heidi's four children, the couple were sure to pack on the PDA in a very amorous display for all to see.

Lapping it up: Heidi Klum, 48, paraded her phenomenal physique in a lavender bikini on Thursday, during a jaunt on a luxury boat with husband Tom Kaulitzher, 31

The model has been in Europe this week and took to the posh vessel in a tiny purple bikini.

The German-American star made sure all eyes were on her supermodel physique while she sprawled out under the Corsica sunshine on the boat.

The fashionista is joined on the French island by her husband and her four children - daughters Leni, 17, and Lou, 11, and sons Henry, 15 and Johan, 14.

She shares Leni with controversial businessman Flavio Briatore, although she was later taken under the wing of Heidi's former husband Seal, who is father to Lou, Henry and Johan too.
