

German Civilian Wounded By Gunshot On Way To Kabul Airport, Says Berlin

20/08/2021 19:16 by admin

The person is not in a life-threatening condition and will soon be flown out of Afghanistan, a German government spokeswoman said on Friday.

Afghanistan: Taliban has taken control of the country after withdrawal of US-led foreign forces. (File)

Berlin: A German civilian was shot on his way to Kabul airport but is not in a life-threatening condition and will soon be flown out of Afghanistan, a German government spokeswoman said on Friday.

"A German civilian suffered a gunshot wound on his way to Kabul airport. He is receiving medical attention, but his life is not in danger and he will be flown out soon," the spokeswoman told a regular government news conference in Berlin.

- Reuters